

Key Guidelines for Making a Research Paper Outline

A research paper is an important piece of academic writing. It is made compulsory in college or universities for students to write a research paper to check their research and writing abilities. Writing a research paper needs beforehand planning so that it will help you produce a good research paper. It is a time-consuming process, so you need to make a well-structured and well-organized outline to provide you with directions. Just search for a reliable essay writing service to get your work done within a desirable time or take guidance from the essay experts.

Before writing the final manuscript of any essay or research paper, you should outline it. Before writing an essay or a paper, a dissertation writing services would always recommend establishing an outline. It will assist you in organizing your thoughts logically and deliberately. Furthermore, you will most likely be aware of the supporting data at the start of the writing process. Additionally, you will stay motivated throughout the writing process if you create a detailed outline.

Here are few guidelines to create a comprehensive guideline for your research paper before writing the final manuscript

Title page

The title page is the front page of your research paper that presents your name and title of the research paper. You don't need to further edit this when a title page is created properly while developing the outline. It should include the following elements

- Topic title
- Name of the author
- Author's affiliation
- Course title or code
- Submission date
- Authors note (if required)

One thing to keep in mind while creating the title page is to style of format required. For instance, the title page for APA will differ from the MLA format. So, the format must be kept in mind, and create the title page accordingly

Abstract

An abstract of the research paper is a summary of the paper. After the title page outline, the abstract and will include the following elements

- Main arguments or ideas
- Research aims or objectives
- Research methodology
- Major findings of the research paper

An abstract of the research paper varies between the length of 150-200 words, so outline your paper accordingly

Table of content

Make a rough outline for the table of content. A table of contents would give your readers an idea about what they would get to know in the research paper. It helps to organize the sections and chapters of the research paper in an organized manner.

Sometimes it can be difficult to write a paper and, in such cases, you can always hire a custom essay writing service to assist you in your task. It would save you from a lot of hassles and you can get a perfect paper written by a professional essay writer.

Introduction

An introduction is the crucial part of an essay or research paper. It gives brief background information on the topic under discussion. It also addresses the research question of the paper and tries to answer that research question. Based on the introduction of the research paper your audience will decide whether to continue it or not. When I write my paper, I include the following elements to write an introduction that is impressive and engaging for the readers

- It is always suggested to start the introduction with a hook. It is one of the most important techniques to grab your reader's attention. It could be an overwhelming fact or statistics related to the topic.
- After that add historical background information related to the topic
- Add some general information about the topic
- Then comes the main part, the thesis statement. It gives an overview of the paper that shows why the topic under discussion carries great importance. Make sure that your thesis statement must be clear, understandable, and specific

Body of the research paper

It is the main part of your research paper. It must consist of several paragraphs within different sections. The body should include the main information, evidence, supporting the main arguments, and examples. Your paper should be consistent from top to bottom. Moreover, the style and citation must be according to the format required by your instructor.

The main elements that should be included in the body of your research paper are shown below

Literature review

A literature review is the important part of the research paper that comes after the introduction. It will present information on literature that has been presented by various researchers previously related to the particular topic. It will help guide you through your research. Moreover, it can be used to highlight the research gaps in your area of research.

Materials and method

As the name indicates it includes the material and methods used to conduct the research work. It is a completely separate section. Every research needs various techniques and a set of instruments to conduct the research hence, you need to add descriptive information on the techniques used.

Results

At the end of the paper, the author is required to present the main findings related to the research. A good research paper will make use of facts, figures, and tables to justify the arguments made in the research paper. Make use of statistical software to present your results. Make sure the tables and figures you have presented are clear, concise, and understandable.

Discussion

Some of the research papers require a combined section for results and discussion. However, a separate section for discussion is better. In the discussion part, the author is required to make sure if the expected results are achieved or not.

Conclusion

It is the final part of the research paper. It summarizes the main ideas or arguments of the paper. Start with restating the thesis statement. Continue with mentioning the goals and the methodology used to achieve those goals. No detailed information is required.

Bibliography

At the end in a separate section enlist all the sources used in the text according to the required format. Students find it difficult to get done with bibliography however, TheEssayWritingService.com can do this job for you

Appendix

This section is not mandatory but if the document requires an appendix section include tables, facts, and charts.

Useful Resources:

Key Lessons I learned through Essay Writing

Strong Research Skills the Key to Professional Essay

Pros of essay writing services, you would love to know about

Ideas to Fix Comma Splices in Essays

Students enjoy summer break without worrying about school! Thanks to CollegeEssay.org